U. N. FORGES GAINS ALONG A WIDE FRONT

Surprise Chinese Withdrawal Leaves a "No-Man's-Land" in Front of Some Forces

ONLY PATROL CONTACT

Tokyo, April 6—(P)—A surprise Chinese withdrawal on the central front last night left a "no-man's-land" in front of United Nations forces today north of parallel 38.

AP Correspondent John Randolph said Chinese who had been fighting stubbornly for two days suddenly broke contact Thursday night and retreated.

Americans thrusting forward Friday reported only patrol contact.

All along a 40-mile stretch of the front, U. S. units forged slow gains.

The Allied advance had thrust as much as eight miles inside the Communist northland.

Elements of four divisions pressed the slow, cautious United Nations advance on the central and western fronts. American, British, Greek, South Korean and Thai (Siamese) troops fought ahead from hill to hill.

Today's Department of Defense casualty lists from Korea include the name of Cpl. William R. Geer, Jr., son of William R. Geer, Waterford Route 4, killed in action; Cpl. Gerald E. Beyer, husband of Mrs. Olga Beyer, 112 Clarence street, Bradford, wounded in action.

On the east coast, two South Korean divisions ranged 15 miles north of the border.

All but a few Chinese and Red Korean stragglers had been driven from battered South Korea.

The die-hards blocked the Hagye-Inje road east of Chunchon on the mountainous central front.

Americans battered up that road behind heavy artillery fire, but they still were south of parallel 38. The Reds controlled ridges on both sides of the road.

Once the road is opened to Allied traffic, the front will extend from the Imjin river in the west to the Japan sea on the east—all of it in North Korea.

Allied forces on the western front have bumped up against solid concrete fortifications. Red defenders were guarding the flank of a massive Communist buildup for an expected spring offensive.

On the central front, Chinese forces launched several minor counter-attacks Thursday night against U. N. troops north of the border. The Allies hurled back the attacks and drove slowly ahead.

President Woos Organized Labor Back Into Advisory Mobilization Planning

Washington, April 6—(P)—President Truman has wooed organized labor back into the defense planning fold with membership on a 17-man advisory mobilization board.

Union leaders agreed to the proposal late yesterday after a lengthy White House conference with Mr. Truman.

The president was reported "very happy" they'd decided to take a hand. The labor chiefs said they hoped the move would lead to a complete solution of the problems which started their boycott of the mobilization program five weeks ago.

The board will hold its first meeting Monday. Mr. Truman is expected to sit in on it.

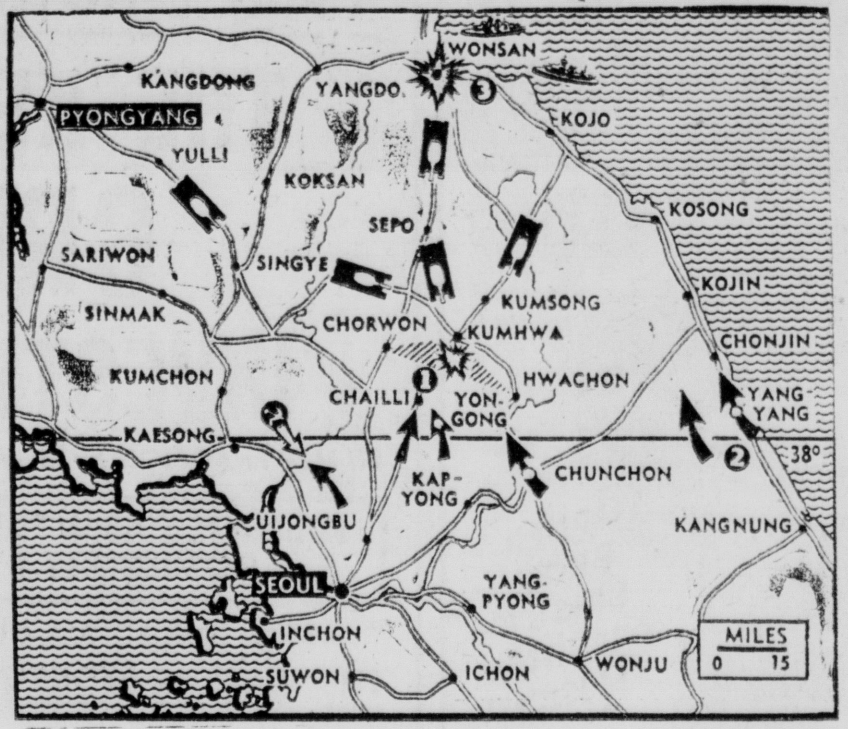

The board, made up of four representatives each from labor, industry, agriculture and the public, and headed by defense mobilizer Charles E. Wilson, will help Mr. Truman determine defense policy.

AFL President William Green, CIO President Philip Murray, AFL Secretary-Treasurer George Meany, and Walter P. Reuther, head of the CIO United Auto Workers probably will represent labor.

Presidential Press Secretary Joseph H. Short told reporters the other selections for the board had not yet been indicated.

The union leaders who met with Mr. Truman represented the United Labor policy committee (ULPC) which speaks for the major segment of union membership. Only John L. Lewis was missing from

ALLIES REACH RED BUILD-UP AREA—UN forces pushed eight miles above 38th parallel on Uijongbu-Kumhwa road (1); dented Red "Iron Triangle" (shaded area) where Communists were massing over half a million troops. Massive flights of Allied warplanes blasted (explosion symbol) build-up sector while enemy continued to pour reinforcements (tank symbols) into area. ROK troops on east coast above Yangyang (2) extended bridgehead beyond 15-mile depth. At east coast port of Wonsan (3), UN warships carried their non-stop bombardment of city into 47th straight day.

Youngsville Fish & Game Club Receives High Commendation at Annual Banquet

Hearty commendation for its efforts in interesting youth and in conservation of the section's natural resources was given the Brokenstraw Fish and Game Club by fish and game officials at the organization's annual banquet held last night in the Youngsville High School gym.

Seth Myers, Sharon, secretary of the Northwestern Federation of Sportsmen, complimented the club on the essay and poster contest which prefaced the banquet, stressing the importance of enlisting support of the young people as the future sportsmen, and urging that every member of the community get behind the organized clubs in their programs.

Another Week of Grace Is Granted Condemned Trio

Bellefonte, April 6—(P)—David Darcy and two other convicted holdup slayers—saved from the electric chair three times in five days—have been granted another week of grace.

Governor John S. Fine issued that further stay last night after a U. S. district court in Scranton took under advisement a petition for a new trial for the 26-year-old Darcy.

The three Philadelphians have had eight reprieves in all. Last night's came three hours before their scheduled execution.

The governor's action put off the triple execution until April 12.

The other 11th hour reprieves came last Sunday and Tuesday nights while court actions were pending.

Darcy's companions in the hold-up-killing were Harry Zietz, 22, and Harold Foster, 26. The three were convicted of killing a tavern keeper after a robbery on Pittsburgh, April 6—(P)—Plans for a 17-story apartment building on downtown Grant street today blossomed into a new hotel. The hotel with 600 suites will open in September. Half of the suites will be for transients, the others for permanent guests. Resident Manager William Land said the hotel will be known as the Carlton House.

MOVE ON TO REVIVE FINE TAX PROGRAM

Harrisburg, April 6—(P)—The Schuylkill county house delegation was ready to tip the scales today to support an administration move to revive the one-half of one per cent personal income tax.

G. Harold Watkins, Schuylkill county Republican chairman, said five house members from the hard coal county could not be counted out as outright opponents of the income levy.

"The position of the members from our county was that more time was needed to sound out reaction back home on the income tax bill," said Watkins. "That was why they voted against the bill Wednesday."

He indicated, however, that the group may be ready to vote for the bill when the Republican leadership makes a move to reconsider it next week.

Rep. Edward S. Swartz (R-Dauphin), who led Republican opposition to the income tax bill, said he would fight any move to revive it. Swartz said in an open forum discussion at Hershey last night that G. Mason Owlett, president of the Pennsylvania Manufacturers Association, called him from the floor of the house this week and asked him to vote for the measure.

"Before I get through with Mr. G. Mason Owlett and Mr. Grundy (Joseph R. Grundy, founder of the Manufacturers Association) one of us is going to take a good licking," Swartz said.

The house defeated the measure by a 108 to 98 vote Wednesday, less than 10 days after the bill was introduced with administration backing.

Three of the majority, however, included house leaders who changed their vote in a parliamentary move to permit reconsideration of the measure. With 101 Republican votes in favor of an income tax, the five Schuylkill members are in a position to swing house approval. A constitutional majority of 105 is needed.

Speculation in the legislature said that Watkins was rebuffed in a quest for an appointment by Fine either as attorney general or revenue secretary. The Schuylkill GOP chieftain was said to be seeking an appointment by Fine for the job of Liquor Control Board chairman, a post held by Frederick T. Gelder whose term has expired.

Schuylkill is a GOP-dominated county in Pennsylvania's hard coal area. Thomas J. Kennedy, vice president of the United Mine Workers, declared UMW opposition to the income tax earlier this week.

Meanwhile, Speaker Herbert P. Sorg (R-Elk) renewed his stand that the income tax bill was not "dead."

BUSINESS IN AREA REVEALS A COMEBACK

Pittsburgh, April 6—(P)—Nearly all the drop in business in the last two weeks in the Pittsburgh district was recovered last week, the University of Pittsburgh reports.

Most of the gains came from increases in trade and industrial production. The index rose from 181.3 per cent of the 1935-39 average in the week ended March 24 to 194.2 last week.

LOSES BID FOR FREEDOM

Pittsburgh, April 6—(P)—Ramon Coudron, an inmate of Western Penitentiary, has lost a bid for freedom. Coudron, serving consecutive terms for robberies in Westmoreland, Clearfield and Centre counties, petitioned federal court on the grounds that one of his indictments was not signed properly. Judge Nelson McVicar ruled this didn't make any difference inasmuch as Coudron had pleaded guilty, making the proceedings legal.

Manager of Local Airport Since 1935 Passes Away at Warren General Hospital

Virgil S. King, 50, affectionately known to a host of friends in the section and aviation circles throughout the state as "Slip", passed away at the Warren General Hospital at 9:45 o'clock Thursday evening. Although he had not been in the best of health for the past three years, the unexpected passing of Mr. King came as a profound shock, not only to his family, but to all who knew him.

Born in Chancellors Valley June 6, 1900, son of Mr. and Mrs. L. W. King, "Slip" had devoted about forty years of his life to aviation in one form or another. As a boy he showed keen interest in flying and experimented with gliders on fields around his home at Chancellors Valley.

His long and successful flying career actually started when he was affiliated with the Navy at Pensacola, Fla., in 1919 to 1921. For several years he pursued other activities, but in 1927 he went to Marshall, Mo., where for a year he took a refresher course in a flying school. From then on, as one of his good friends stated today, "There was nothing on his mind or in his heart except flying."

In 1923 "Slip" owned an old Standard model plane which he flew around Chancellors Valley and Jamestown, appearing in many barnstorming exhibitions. In 1928 he flew from a field at Asheville, N. Y., and Bakers Field, at Jamestown. Later he was associated with and flew from the Municipal airport in Jamestown, where he operated a flying club.

"Slip" came to Warren in 1935 when he took over management of the local airport on the west side, after it appeared that interest in that field would be permitted to fade out entirely. In the meantime he took an instrument training course at Harrisburg, and was in Rochester, N. Y., for secondary course training.

In Warren Mr. King had special experience for war-training service of government classes. He supervised the Civil Pilot Training class-

House Appropriation Committee Votes 43 Per Cent Cut in Emergency Program

Washington, April 6—(P)—The house appropriations committee voted a 43 per cent cut today in a $843,463,569 emergency fund asked by President Truman.

It approved only $478,126,363 of the total sought by Mr. Truman to finance a number of emergency government activities for the remaining months of this fiscal year, which ends June 30.

One of the larger cuts was in the Voice of America overseas broadcast program. Despite a plea yesterday by the president for the full amount, the committee recommended that only $9,533,939 of the $97,500,000 be granted.

Another cut was in the $454,000,000 budget of non-military defense agencies. The committee voted to hold the agencies to $224,750,000.

The committee's recommendations were embodied in a supplemental appropriation bill sent to the house floor for debate next week.

The house, the senate appropriations committee and the senate itself have yet to pass on the amounts.

Along the line, the sums may be lowered or raised. Usually, the final form of a bill finds early cuts restored, at least.

The house committee approved funds for the employment of 1,260 additional FBI agents, for the repair and reactivation of 100 merchant ships in the laid-up fleet and for veterans' benefits including the purchase of 500 specially equipped automobiles for disabled veterans.

It rejected a $20,000,000 request to move 19,000 federal employees out of crowded Washington, saying there were no firm

Puerto Rican to Pay With His Life For Part He Played In Storming Blair House Nov. 1

Washington, April 6—(P)—Oscar Collazo, 37, today was sentenced to die in the electric chair Oct. 26, for the attempted assassination of President Truman last fall and the slaying of a presidential guard.

In an impassioned outburst, Collazo said he did not want to plead for his life but for Puerto Rico's independence. Turning to the court room audience, the little Puerto Rican shouted:

"Whatever I did, I did it for a just cause. I did it for my country." Federal Judge T. Alan Goldsborough explained that he set the execution date for next fall because Collazo's court-appointed attorneys already have given notice of an appeal.

Goldsborough said that if appeals actions were not completed by Oct. 26 he would grant a stay of execution at that time.

At his trial, Collazo had contended he and a companion, Griselio Torresola, were only demonstrating for Puerto Rican independence when they attempted to storm Blair House last Nov. 1. Torresola and a White House guard, Leslie Coffelt, were killed in a furious exchange of pistol shots.

"I am not pleading for my life," Collazo told the judge. "I'm pleading for my cause. Anything that I have done I did for the liberty of my country. I insist, even unto the end, that we have a right to be free."

Collazo's 42-year-old wife, Rosa, heard her husband doomed without any show of emotion. "Afterward she told reporters that her husband's death, will not weaken the cause of Puerto Rican independence 'but will make it stronger.'"

"I will stay side by side to him," Mrs. Collazo added.

The death sentence was mandatory from a jury's verdict March 7 that Collazo was guilty of two counts of first degree murder.

Both murder charges were based on Coffelt's death. One alleged deliberate and premeditated murder. The other charged murder while attempting to break into Blair House—President Truman's temporary residence—with intent to assassinate the president.

After the sentencing, Collazo was led through the corridors of the court building back to jail. Mrs. Collazo was waiting to see him. He smiled. She waved and said something in Spanish.

At the outset of the proceedings, Judge Goldsborough said the jury's verdict left him no discretion—that he must impose the death penalty. He said, too, that he felt Collazo was clearly guilty of first degree murder on both of the counts in the indictment.

The judge then recalled it was the "proper custom" to ask whether the defendant had anything to say.

Collazo began by saying some Americans "do not believe that whatever I did, I did it for a just cause. I did it for my country."

He went on to say that he still wants to make the American people see that more than 65 persons have been killed and more than 200 wounded in Puerto Rico. He attributed this to American rule and declared:

"I still insist that my country be free."

Through history, he said, millions of people have been killed for liberty. At the present time, (Turn to Page Thirteen)

MacArthur's Latest Challenge to the Administration Policy Is Causing Stir

Washington, April 6—(P)—Gen. Douglas MacArthur has proved again he is one of the Truman administration's hottest potatoes.

His latest challenge of administration policy and Washington authority was burning fingers today at the White House, the State Department and the Pentagon.

MacArthur's letter to a Republican leader, Rep. Joe Martin of Massachusetts, warmly endorsing Martin's demand that the thousands of Chinese Nationalist troops on Formosa under command of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek be used in action against the Chinese and Korean Communists, had potentialities in at least three fields:

1. Domestic politics.
2. International politics, including the United Nations program in the Far East.
3. Military strategy.

While MacArthur's letter promptly raised speculation about possible disciplinary action against the five-star general, there was serious question whether the White House would risk a bitter fight in congress by removing him from command or promoting him out of it.

After reading MacArthur's letter to the house yesterday, Martin made it evident that here was the material for an issue. He said:

"I think it is high time that the administration and the pentagon came clean with the congress and the American people."

Capt. Leon Mintzer and Fireman Stephen Pees were called to bring the resuscitator at 5:44 p. m. yesterday when a neighbor noticed Gern stagger out of the station where he had been working on a car. The firemen worked over him for about a half hour and he was then removed to the hospital by the Lutz ambulance. Dr. Raymond Lowe was the attending physician.

Confessed Spy To Hear Fate in New York Court Today

New York, April 6—(P)—Confessed atom spy David Greenglass, chief accuser of his doomed sister and brother-in-law, will hear his own fate today.

Greenglass is liable to the same federal death penalty imposed on his kin—but he looks for mercy.

His testimony was the bulwark of the government's case against condemned Julius and Ethel Rosenberg. Federal Judge Irving R. Kaufman, who sentenced the couple as Russian spies, noted the "courage" and "soul-searching" that lay behind Greenglass' decision to testify against his family.

Greenglass, 29-year-old former army sergeant, was to have been sentenced yesterday along with the Rosenbergs and Morton Sobell.

But his sentencing was postponed until today when his counsel, former Assistant Attorney General O. John Rogge, asked for more time to prepare his plea.

Greenglass has pleaded guilty to the same indictment on which the Rosenbergs and Sobell elected to stand trial and were convicted by a jury a week ago yesterday.

His wife, Ruth, mother of two small children, joined Greenglass in testifying for the government. She had been named as a co-conspirator in the spy ring—but not as a defendant.

Letter to the Editor

Warren, Pa., April 5
Dear Editor:
We have been listening with great interest to the extensive and expensive plans being made for a Fourth of July celebration in our city. We had hoped that with this terrible war on that we might use our money this year to a better advantage. Not that I wish to deprive our people of their pleasure or even place our town on the map as a "back-number." But why—oh why, should we celebrate when our brave men are fighting and sacrificing all that they hold dear, and being returned blinded, maimed and handicapped for life, while we celebrate, eat, laugh, dance—put on a big time and think that by so doing we are having a good time and showing our loyalty to our country. Then there is the matter of fireworks. Have you ever sat or stood by one or more of our returned veterans when the display of fireworks was on? Did you not look at the anguish on their faces, or see the twitching muscles and hear the sigh of relief when it was all over and peace and quiet restored? Yes, and near him give a little laugh to cover his confusion when you looked at him inquiringly? Oh I know that we do not mean to be cruel but I do consider this cruelty. No we are not children who have to be entertained with fireworks. We like the J. Cs and their wanting to do what they think is wise but let's do away with the fireworks for this year at least and spend all that money for something worthwhile and more necessary. Oh yes, it could be used for a much needed rest-room. Have you ever heard the remark: "I would like to take my children and go to Warren for a good time but it is so hard to spend a day there as they have no rest-room facilities and the few stores that are open do not care to have one come in and use theirs, and so I either go and do the best I can or stay at home—but why Warren does not provide for the traveling public is more than I can understand. They surely have the money." In closing, may I ask you a question? "Did you attend the Fourth of July celebration last year and note just how badly a rest-room was needed? Were you not as a good citizen of Warren embarrassed when an out of town visitor asked you where the public rest room was located and you were compelled to say: "We have none." A Citizen of Warren.

Pennsylvania Plan For Mobilization Of Production

Andrew J. Sordani, Pennsylvania Secretary of Commerce, announces the formation of the Pennsylvania Plan for Production Mobilization, designed to unite large and small manufacturers in Pennsylvania in the interest of defense production in the present crisis.

The plan will be coordinated by Regional Defense Production Committees, which will be organized throughout Pennsylvania with the assistance of the Pennsylvania Department of Commerce. Each Regional Committee will be headed by a Regional Defense Coordinator, selected by representatives of local industries. It will be the function of the coordinator and his committee to compile information on available production facilities in their area and act as liaison between defense prime contractors and potential subcontractors.

The regional committees will prepare and use inventories of productive resources to locate qualified subcontractors in their area when there is a request from a prime contractor. If local groups are unable to locate subcontractors in their areas, the Pennsylvania Department of Commerce will locate manufacturers in other parts of the state.

"This plan will be mutually beneficial to the small manufacturer and to large industries," said Secretary Sordani. "The Regional Committees will aid the prime contractors in finding the plants where their subcontracting work actually can be done. They also will act as coordinators for groups of manufacturers who may be too small to act independently but who can qualify for prize contracts or sub-contracts through joint action."

Secretary Sordani stressed the importance of immediate organization of Region Defense Production Committees in all manufacturing communities throughout Pennsylvania so that the Production Mobilization Plan may be put into complete operation as soon as possible. Representatives of the Pennsylvania Department of Commerce will meet with interested groups to assist with the formation of regional committees and to aid in the operation of the plan. Information on contract awards, priorities, allocations, contract procedure, and financing is now available and Secretary Sordani said the Pennsylvania Department of Commerce "stands ready and willing now or in the future to assist in all phases of this plan."

Perfectly normal weather is unusual in any locality.

SUGAR GROVE

Sugar Grove, April 5—At the regular meeting of borough council conducted by Arthur Landin, it was voted to adopt a daylight saving time schedule effective April 28 to September 30.

Another vote authorized an ordinance prohibiting the parking of cars on sidewalks and crosswalks of the borough.

Following some discussion, a committee composed of Carl Allenson, Roy August and Roy Briggs was authorized to purchase and install two new traffic lights, one at the corner of the Warren road and Main street; the other where Race, Pleasant and Jamestown streets merge into Main street.

In the way of improvements in borough property, floors will be refinished in a part of the borough building and additional shelving will be placed in the library room.

Council members reported an announcement will be made soon concerning a cleanup campaign for next month.

Chester Mason, traffic officer, reported 14 violations for the month of March. Of these, eight were for fast driving and six were for going through stop signs. Violators were evenly divided between Pennsylvania and out of state drivers, Officer Mason stated.

I've got this guy worried!

And We've got a solution to this trouble maker.

FINANCIAL ESTIMATES CONFOUNDING

The people have been slightly confounded by the latest financial reports emanating from Washington. Earlier forecasts of a $2,700,000,000 deficit for the current year have been replaced by predictions that the government may wind up with $3,000,000,000 surplus instead.

The ordinary citizen might ask: "How can financial experts be $5,700,000,000 off in their estimates in the space of a few months?"

Without wishing to apologize for the experts, one can say that in these days of mammoth sums it's easy.

First of all, Congress increased corporate and personal income taxes last fall. By the time President Truman submitted his new budget in January, only part of a year's returns at the higher rate had come into the U. S. treasury. The budgeters had to guess what a full year would bring. They guessed too low.

The January forecast was based also on a calculated rate of expenditure for defense purposes. In actual practice, that rate has not been achieved. Expenses are running well behind the estimates.

Put the underestimated income side by side with overestimated expenses and you change a potential deficit into a prospective surplus.

It would be risky to assume, though, that this unexpectedly bright outlook is going to continue indefinitely. As Defense Mobilizer Charles Wilson and others have pointed out, the government is now ordering arms and munitions at a vastly accelerated pace—$2,000,000,000 a month, or double the defense outlays at the time of the outbreak of war in Korea.

The bills for these orders have not yet come in. When they do, next fall and winter, the government's surprising surplus will vanish in a hurry and we'll be back in the red. No miracle of financial sleight-of-hand is going to remove from our backs the burden of a greatly expanded arms program.

When the impact of this effort really starts to hit us, the need for more taxes once more will be strikingly apparent. Mr. Truman has scaled down his 1951 tax demands from $16,500,000,000 to $10,000,000,000, but his lieutenants are seeking prompt action on that lower figure to assure the government's readiness to make heavier outlays in the months ahead.

Congress would not have voted the larger sum this year anyway. Indeed, it may wind up giving grudging approval to perhaps no more than $7,000,000,000 in new levies this year. That might well prove sufficient for a while.

But it's hard to see how Congress can escape voting still higher taxes later, if we wish to curb inflation and keep the defense program on a pay-as-you-go basis. Maximum defense output is not expected to come until early 1952, and federal expenses certainly will rise until that peak has been reached.

We can all be grateful for the rosier glow that today surrounds the federal balance sheet. But we needn't kid ourselves into believing we've managed to achieve an effective defense without financial pain. The sacrifices have merely been deferred.

'SLIP' KING

In the passing of Virgil "Slip" King Warren loses a citizen who perhaps more than any other one deserves credit for making this community air-minded to the extent that for many years the municipality could boast an airfield that ranks well among those operated in towns of this size.

"Slip" leaves an enviable record for safety, not only in the air, but as manager of the flying field, reflected in the fact that during his long experience accidents were few and generally of a minor nature, due mainly to the extreme caution he exercised, not only as an aviator, but in the servicing and inspection of ships that flew from his airport.

He leaves a host of friends in Warren and throughout the area, especially among flying enthusiasts, who will be grieved to learn of his passing.

There is no kidding about a lot of the popular evening gowns. They're straight from the shoulder.

Whatever your work, the harder you step on it the more impression you make.

Often a nightmare is just a dream with her hair in a flock of curlers.

The Sixty-Four Dollar Question

Here And There

Timely Topics: Senator L. E. Chapman is co-sponsor with Senators Israel Stiefel, D-Phila., and D. Robert Watkins, R-Dele., of a bill to appropriate $100,000 to reconstruct the Swedish log colonial capitol and other buildings dating back to 1643 in Gov. Printz park, Delaware county. . . . And there's a bill, introduced in the house, that would prohibit the use of sirens on any vehicle, including fire trucks and ambulances, during the present emergency, and another measure of general interest before the house is a bill to permit a local option vote on the question of operation of bowling alleys on Sundays. . . . A resolution for the services R. S. Brown has given during the past two years as a member of the committee was adopted at the recent meeting of the Warren Retailers committee and best wishes extended to him in his new store in Youngstown, O. . . . The Retailers Committee, on record as opposing any sales tax for Pennsylvania, in Governor Fine's program. . . . A possible parking lot site centrally located, has been suggested to the Civic Affairs committee of the Chamber of Commerce. . . . Indications are Warren will be well represented at Cleveland April 20-21 and 22 when the Indians open the season at the Stadium with the St. Louis Browns.

This 'N' That: The cafeteria continues to be a busy and successful project for the women who have assumed the responsibility for this important factor in the life of the North Warren school where from sixty to eighty meals are prepared and served each day. . . . Hundreds of ex-service men in the area soon will start receiving a second dividend on their GI insurance, according to the Veterans Administration, which has announced that while no definite date has been set for distribution of the checks, they will be mailed within the next few days. . . . It will be good news to motorists throughout the section to learn that Sugar Grove officials have decided to have two electric lights erected to help regulate traffic in and out of that village. . . . A number of student nurses of the Oil City Hospital, who participated in a stage presentation Monday night in Senior High School there, were robbed of several dollars in cash during the performance. . . . A large number of Canadian geese were sighted flying northward over the area Wednesday afternoon. . . . Don't forget the Engstrom Koridon Kids will hold a benefit at the Town Barn this evening beginning at 7:30 o'clock, with square and round dancing on the program interspersed with a special program by the kids themselves, along with the sale of refreshments of all kinds. . . . The boys in charge of the Koaster Klask, planned as a feature of the Fourth of July celebration this summer are doing a swell job in early promotion work, and deserve the whole-hearted cooperation of all citizens, since it looks like an attraction that will furnish plenty of excitement and entertainment for the community. . . .

Tips On Tuning

Spring is indubitably here! There is absolutely no more question about it. There may still be some snow on the ground. It may be so cold that you have to wear the heavy overcoat. . . . But it's still spring. How can I tell? Baseball's back and WNAE has got it. The exhibition schedule got under way this past week and will continue until April the 16th at which time the regular season will start. This year, as in many years past, Rosey Rowsell is the man who tells you about the doings and undoings of the Pirates and uses a little body English in the clinches to try and squeeze out the extra runs. Bob Prince is again in the co-pilot's seat on the baseball broadcasts to handle the commercial chores and take over for Rosey when the urge for a lamb chop is over-compelling and the Buc's best booster must be elsewhere. At the present both Rosey and Bob are with the Pirates in their spring training tour and will broadcast the first regular season game from Cincinnati live. This year Sunday ball games will be broadcast over WNAE rather than WNAE-FM. Of course, all night games will be heard over WNAE-FM. Sunday's game and the game on the 15th being exhibition games, will be broadcast on WNAE-FM, but when the regular season gets under way, the Sunday games go to WNAE.

Here is the schedule of games for the coming week:

Saturday, 3:25—Pittsburgh vs. the Phils.
 Sunday (FM) 3:25—Pittsburgh vs. the Phils.
 Monday (FM) 8:55—Pittsburgh vs. the Phils.
 Tuesday, 2:55—Pittsburgh vs. the Phils.
 Wednesday, 2:25 — Pittsburgh vs. the Phils.
 Thursday, 2:25—Pittsburgh vs. the Yankees.
 Friday, 1:30—Open date time—no game. . . it's Friday the 13th.

Of course, this year as last year, each game will be preceded by Joe Tucker's baseball fanning bee called "Warm-up Time", fifteen minutes before baseball broadcast time. Incidentally, all times listed in the above schedule are air time. All games with the exception of the one on the 12th will be played on Minor League fields in the south. The exhibition game with the New York Yankees will be played at Forbes Field in Pittsburgh.

With the advent of baseball, a lot of the disc jockey programs that have been a regular part of WNAE's afternoon schedule become rather sporadic things that are heard only now and then. Please Play, the Carnival of Music and Club 1310 get a bit of a kicking around because of the variance in game starting and ending times. . . . And speaking of ending times. . . . there will still be days when the poor guy that happens to be working must cut the game and make his little speech about previous commercial commitments and pick up the regular schedule. It doesn't happen very often and when it does, WNAE-FM always picks up the games until conclusion.

If you are not a ball fan, and there are plenty who are not, we invite your attention to WNAE-FM's afternoon schedule. Mutual carries a particularly fine disc jockey-comedian, Bob Poole who inhabits a place called Poole's Paradise. This is just one of the fine programs that WNAE-FM carries each day to give you listening variety. Check the daily program schedule in the Times-Mirror for a complete listing of every day's programs on both stations and take your pick.

HAVE you ever wondered how it would feel to go the limit on power and comfort and quality in an automobile?

Or how it would feel to be lord and master of a car that can take its place with the finest in the "fine-car field"?

Then, sir, this is a call to action.

The first action is yours—the simple action of getting in touch with a Buick dealer and planting yourself behind the wheel of a ROADMASTER.

Then let this great-powered and dazzling performer take over.

There's action in every one of the 152 horsepower in its Fireball engine—more action than most proud owners of this eager beauty will ever use.

There's counter-action in its gentle and sure-gripping brakes, the finest that Buick has ever engineered.

But there's also luxury—the luxury of double-depth Foamtex cushions and custom upholstery—and of ample roadweight magnificently poised on coil springs which individually cushion every wheel.

When better automobiles are built Buick will build them

Capacity Audience at First Lutheran Church Thrilled by Gettysburg Choir

A capacity crowd filled First Lutheran church and Sunday school last evening to hear the Gettysburg College Choir of 51 voices present a fine program. The group, under the direction of Mr. Parker B. Wagnild, sang its best selections in an individual and seldom heard in local presentations. Singing a program of the finest modern church music, that any choral group would not sing for fear of lack of commercial appeal, the singers produced eight harmonic and tonal effects that turned tensed, stirred and relaxed the audience. The climax was achieved in the final number, "Motet for Advent," by Gustav Schreck, for solo and choral chorus, which brought the concert to a grand and powerful close.

A description used in a neighboring paper tells very well about the feeling of the local audience, when it says "Such devout, moving singing is a tribute to the earnestness of these Gettysburg College students and to the musical taste and inspiration of Director Wagnild. It was obvious that the students knew what they were doing and were caught up in the fervor of sincere religious music." During intermission, Rev. Edward K. Rogers, pastor of the church, welcomed the choir and its director, and extended thanks to all who helped. He particularly mentioned the Dorcas Class, the Luther League and those persons who responded to patron appeals. The choir was entertained with a social hour at the church following the concert. Choir members were entertained in homes of members of the church for the evening.

No Man Ever Leaves Wife That He Enjoys Being With

"No man ever leaves a wife he enjoys being with. But many have divorced superb cooks, fashion plates, wise managers, and devoted mothers," Louise Bruner points out in a recent magazine article. That first sentence is one wives should memorize and take to heart. But how can you be sure your husband enjoys being with you? He does if you can answer "Yes" to the following:

Do you find something to laugh about together every day? You can, you know, if you look for the amusing side of little every day incidents and share your laughter with your husband.

Do you make your husband feel adequate to all of his responsibilities? You can do that by appreciating what he does for you, instead of being unhappy because some other woman has more than you do, and letting him know that you believe in his ability and his own special talents.

DO YOU TAKE IT EASY?

Do you have a relaxed, easy attitude, so that small annoyances, sudden changes of plans, and emergencies don't upset you? Do you honestly try to see things from your husband's point of view? Men and women have very different ideas on many things, and even though a woman may not think as her husband does it is important that she realize that he has as much right to his ideas as she has to hers. And she must remember that hers aren't necessarily always right.

Do you know how to play? A hardworking man needs to relax completely now and then and for a little while forget his responsibilities. But many wives never really share such carefree interludes, because they are always serious, always practical, always worrying about details.

Are you happy? If you are, your husband will enjoy being with you. If you aren't, you can't expect anyone to find you good company.

Women's Association Enjoys Musical Treat

A most unusual and delightful musical treat was the reward of those in attendance at the regular meeting of the First Presbyterian Women's Association last evening.

Arranged by Mrs. James Potter, the program consisted of four piano selections by Mrs. Robert Thompson, Youngsville, including two of Dr. LeRoy Campbell's compositions; contralto solos by Mrs. Everett Borg, accompanied by Miss Linnea Scott at the piano and Mrs. Robert Sandblade on the cello. Mrs. Borg sang a group of Viennese songs, recited a clever poem to introduce a number of children's songs and lullabies, and concluded with a group of sacred songs appropriately preceded by scripture and a reading presented by Miss Catherine Henderson.

To conclude the musicale, a trio composed of Mrs. Carl Whipple, Mrs. Frederick Olson and Mrs. Sandblade pleased with its selections.

Industrial Expansion Shows Upsurge in Borough in Past Year

Value of New Plant Facilities Placed at More than $2,500,000

Industrial expansion—a reliable barometer of the community's business health—showed vigorous upsurge in Warren borough during 1950 and the first quarter of 1951.

A survey of major projects shows a complete new plant for Sylvania Products Co., Inc., a major addition to Pennsylvania Furnace and Iron Company, complete remodeling of a Pennsylvania Electric Co. building, and spade work ready to start on an addition to Betts Machine Co.

Value of the new industrial facilities, including cost of construction and new machinery is conservatively estimated at $2,500,000.

Major change in the industrial skyline for Warren is the new plastics plant, now being built for the Sylvania Electric Products, Inc., on the site of the old Russell athletic field on the East Side.

The project was initiated by the Warren Industrial and Development Corporation, an organization of local business men, which put up more than $100,000 for construction of a new plant.

Then, as the project got under way, Sylvania engineers found they needed even more floor space to keep pace with the rapidly expanding plastics industry.

Even before the walls were up on the plant built by WIDCO, Sylvania was mapping plans for a huge addition which dwarfs the size of the original plant.

The WIDCO section of the new plant built, provides Sylvania with 30,000 square feet of floor space for plastic molding, and assembly of electrical sockets and bases.

Long batteries of plastic molding machines already are in production, as work progresses on the new addition, which will give the company an additional 50,000 square feet of space for wire drawing, a punch press section and a department to house wire plating equipment.

Including the office space, the new plant will have a total floor area of 86,000 square feet. The plastic molding machines were transferred to the new plant from Sylvania's East street site, and the assembly section was moved in from a plant at Clarendon. In addition, the complete equipment of a plastic plant at Latrobe was moved here.

When the new section is ready, the wire drawing department will be transferred from East street. Sylvania then plans to greatly expand their existing machine shop at East street. The Clarendon and Latrobe plants will be closed down entirely.

A Sylvania spokesman said the actual construction of the new plant will cost an estimated $500,000, and that when it is completed, the plant machinery, much of which is brand new, will have a valuation of at least $2,000,000. Some 300 or 400 persons will be employed there. July 1 has been set as a tentative date for completion of the coming project.

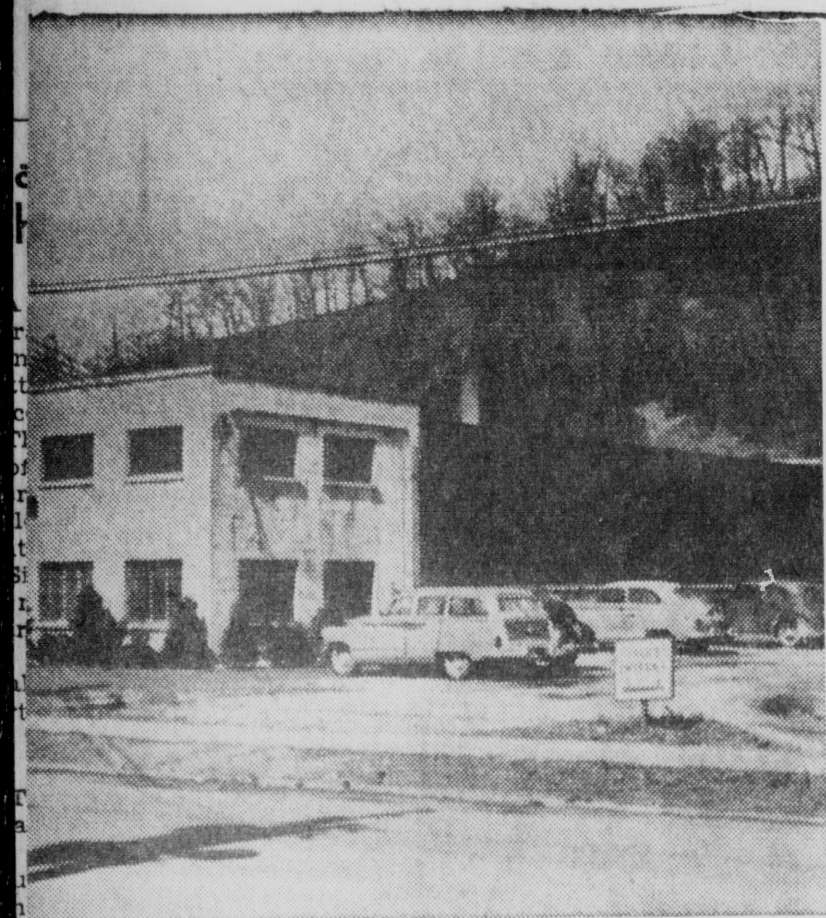

Penn Furnace and Iron, already ranking as one of the major industries of the community, has increased its floor space from 100,507 to 130,507 square feet. This was done through construction of a series of connecting buildings, the largest of which is 60 x 180 feet. This unit extends southward from the main plant and fronts on Pennsylvania avenue, west.

The new addition was built to house the fabrication of Pennco gas boilers, which are used for heating of homes. The addition cost $115,500, according to reports, and new machinery for the unit was installed at a cost of over nearly $54,000.

In addition to gas heating boilers, Penn Furnace specializes in gas fired furnaces and in fabrication of tanks for trucks used in hauling gasoline, fuel oil and other liquids.

Farther west on Pennsylvania avenue, Betts Machine Company already has staked out an area for a new addition to its plant. It will extend eastward from the

PENN FURNACE AND IRON'S NEW BUILDING—This building, fronting on Pennsylvania avenue, west, is the largest of several new units added to the Penn Furnace plant. It is being used for the fabrication of gas fired heating units for homes.

NEW SYLVANIA PLANT—The Warren Industrial and Development Corporation built this new plant on old Russell athletic field for use as a plastics plant by Sylvania Electric Products Co., Inc. The area in the foreground has been levelled and graveled for use as a parking lot.

NEW EXPANSION—Walls are going up on a new addition to the East Side Sylvania plant which dwarfs the size of the original plant. This section will be used for wire drawing and wire plating.

SPACIOUS QUARTERS—The big tractor-trailer truck (right center) is dwarfed by the spacious quarters inside the new Sylvania plastics plant on the East Side. This section of the plant contains 30,000 square feet of working space. An addition is now being constructed which will add another 50,000 square feet of space.

Thursday evenings. The subject under discussion last evening was "What is the Foremen's relation to Top Management and to Workers?", and the first part of the period was taken up by Mr. Hochhaus in answering a series of questions on that subject, and other questions which were fired at him by the Foremen present. A very profitable discussion of vital problems ensued, and overran the time allotted for that part of the program, such was the interest of the men in the clear, concise and helpful answers given by the resource man, Irwin Hochhaus.

The last half hour of the meeting was given over to selecting subjects, out of eight suggestions, chosen for next Thursday's discussion is, "What is the Supervisors relationship to Wages, Profits and Production?" present plant, and ground is expected to be broken this week.

Cost of this work, it was reported, will be at least $20,000. The building will be 50 by 80 feet, and is being constructed to relieve overcrowding in the present plant.

The company manufactures the well-known Warren valve, and also fabricates parts for mining machinery, pilot plants and special valves.

Fourth major industrial expansion activity in the borough in the past year was the remodeling of the old Eddy street substation by the Pennsylvania Electric Co. The station formerly was used for generating power, and then in 1924 it became a substation. When the new generating plant was built at Starbuck, much of the equipment from Eddy street was transferred to the new plant. The spacious room which formerly housed the turbine was converted into a modern storeroom and offices, while the old boiler room was made over into a garage for Penelec trucks, with complete facilities for service and repair.

Cost of remodeling work was reported at approximately $50,000. It also was reported that the Suffering from a rare blood disease similar to hemophilia, Wayne has been given 34 transfusions of rare O-RH negative blood to replace that which has flowed almost constantly since March 19 from a small wound in his throat. Doctors, who a few hours before this picture was taken said that the youth was living on borrowed time, reported that a last-minute experimental injection of anti-hemophilic serum had temporarily stopped the bleeding.

JUST A FIT—Worse than being over a barrel, thinks five-year-old Tommy Bremner, is to have a barrel over you and not be able to wriggle out. That was Tommy's predicament until Chicago firemen with a hacksaw sprung him. Here, Tommy shows how it was done.

Paulina Wilsdorf, the oldest ward of the International Refugee Organization (IRO)—one of U.N.'s Specialized Agencies—recently celebrated her 105th birthday in a refugee camp near Salzburg, Austria. Her adopted daughter, Elizavita, aged 5, reads the inscription on the cake which says happy birthday in English and Polish. On her anniversary Mrs. Wilsdorf received the most treasured gift she had ever hoped for—the news that she would be resettled in the United States of America, as soon as arrangements can be made.

FOR THE BOYS IN GRAY—This three-cent stamp, commemorating the final reunion of the United Confederate Veterans, will be placed on sale first in Norfolk, Va., on May 30, the opening day of the reunion. The gray stamp depicts a Confederate veteran as he is today and as he appeared as a youth 85 years ago. There are even known surviving Confederate veterans.

LOOKS BEFORE HE JEEPS—Looking squarely into the eyes of a camera just before he jeeped 15 miles inside Communist North Korea during his 15th flying visit to the Korean front is Gen. Douglas MacArthur, second from right. The Supreme United Nations commander drove within 500 yards of the front lines at the northernmost positions of the ROK Capital division above Yangyang on the east coast. With MacArthur are, left to right: Lt.-Gen. Matthew Ridgway, 8th Army CG; Maj.-Gen. D. O. Hickey, SCAP's chief of staff, and an unidentified Korean jeep driver. (U. S. Army photo from NEA-Acme Radio-Telephoto.)

RE-ELECTED TO TOP UAW POSTS—Fiery labor leader Walter P. Reuther, right, is congratulated by Emil Mazey after being unanimously re-elected to the presidency of the United Auto Workers (CIO) at the 13th annual convention of the UAW in Cleveland, O. Reuther, whose union is the world's largest, was elected to his fourth term without opposition while Mazey won the uncontested office of secretary-treasurer for the third time.

NEW PT TAKES TO THE SEA—The Navy's new all-aluminum motor torpedo boat, the PT-812, slashes through rough seas off Cape May, N. J., in its first speed test. No figures have been made public, but officials call it the fastest PT boat ever. With a length of 105 feet, the PT-812 is much larger than the famed wartime mosquito boats.

The Bible's Story of Beginnings

BY WILLIAM E. GILROY, D. D.

SUPPOSE an intelligent person, who had never read the stories of beginnings in the early chapters of Genesis, should come across a reference to a "tree of the knowledge of good and evil," and an account of a serpent speaking, would he not in the very nature of the writing realize that the writer was speaking in a symbolic, rather than in a literal way?

One thing about the Bible that many people forget is that it is an Eastern book. The daily language and literature of the East has always been full of figures and symbols very different from much of our prosaic, Western liberalism. The prophets frequently used figures of speech and symbols to illustrate and express truth. The parables of Jesus were true to life and revealing in the truth concerning God and man that Jesus sought to impart, but they did not depend upon the incidents described having actually happened.

It was "a certain man," who went down from Jerusalem to Jericho, and it might have been any man so far as the truth and the teaching were concerned. The parables are stories and teachings for today, and not just stories of something that happened long ago. Their significance is not as historic incidents but as spiritual tales, or parables, with universality of application.

The great teacher under whom I studied these things years ago interpreted the symbolism of the early Genesis stories in his own way.

He suggested that the creation of woman from man's side meant that she was to be his equal and helpmate; not from his head that she should lord it over him, nor from his foot that he should dominate her. This interpretation is in harmony with the high esteem in which women were held among the Jews and in contrast with their inferior position among many other peoples.

I have never forgotten an incident in the classroom one day. When for most of the lecture period Chancellor Burwash had been proceeding with his poetic interpretation along this line, a student in the back of the room suddenly spoke up. "Do you think, Dr. Burwash," he said, "that Adam was put to sleep so he wouldn't feel any pain when the rib was taken away?"

I don't know whether the student had been asleep or not. But Dr. Burwash, a serious saint not often seen to smile, threw himself back in his chair, with a loud laugh. When he recovered himself, he said in solemn, singing tone, which I can hear to this day: "O, you bald Occidental, you do not understand the beautiful poetry of the Hebrew mind." The student, a diminutive fellow, was thereafter known as "the little rib"—but that's neither here nor there.

The story of the beginning of sin symbolizes the subtle and easy temptation of those made in the image and likeness of God; the essence of sin in disobedience to divine command; the knowledge of good and evil as the result of the fall, and the emergence of man into moral struggle and moral responsibility.

TURN YOUR GUESSES INTO CERTAINTIES
BY OSWALD JACOBY
Written for NEA Service
I dropped into the Hotel Madison the other day to see my favorite partner, John Crawford, in his newly established card school. Johnny was busy giving a lesson, so I proceeded to listen in.
"Whenever you have to guess," Johnny was saying, "there's a chance that you'll guess wrong. The job of a good partner is to turn guesses into certainties. Here's an example."
And he laid out the hand shown today. I cribbed it from him to give all my readers a free lesson. West opens the seven of diamonds, East plays the queen, and South wins with the ace. Declarer leads a club to dummy and returns a trump. East plays the queen, and South wins with the ace. South next leads the jack of hearts, and East wins with the king.
East naturally cashes the king of diamonds, and South cleverly

Youngsville Will Have Bible School During Summer

Youngsville, April 6—Evangelical United Brethren and Methodist churches announce they will be uniting in the summer vacation Bible school, with the opening session in the latter church on June 3.

WSCS members are being entertained this afternoon at the home of Mrs. Willis Kinnear.

Sunshine Club members recently enjoyed a fine three course dinner, served by Mrs. Swanson at the Dinor on Main street, in celebration of the club's 28th anniversary. Following dinner, the club met at the home of Mrs. Cecil Woodward, 4th street. Those present each brought a hat, which she had made and trimmed, some fashioned for beauty and some to attract attention for their amusing features. Each hat was brought unsewn and the hat parade was enjoyed by all. The hostess served cake and coffee at the close of the meeting.

Several people from Youngsville were in Washington, D. C., recently to see the beautiful Japanese cherry blossoms. Those going reported that the blossoms were many of them still in the bud, pretty, not yet in their prime.

Mrs. Marjorie Finlan, who has been in Florida much of the winter, is expected home soon. She is much improved in health.

Titusville Herald: Two nearby lease workers were startled yesterday afternoon to see a low-flying plane whip past just above their heads. There was a thunderous roar which reverberated among the trees, sounding like falling timber. They made a brief search of the vicinity and when they did not find any evidence of a wrecked craft decided they had been fooled by the whiplash of a jet plane. Two men on the Tionesta fire tower, William R. Field of Pleasantville and Robert Chappel of Hickory confirmed the fact it was a jet and it did not crash.

"We're leaving it up to God," he said. "I can't explain why David got mixed up in it. He was never in trouble before."

Darcy's attorney, Charles J. Margiotti, told the court his client "received no defense at all—no trial at all."

The Changing Landscapes

RALPH G. ECKERT

Hello folks, 'Looks like another moonlight job' was the remark of Bill Atkin, Tidoute farmer, as he completed the construction survey on farm number 3. He was thinking of contour strip farming and a diversion going around the hill instead of square field farming as practiced by the former owner. Bill said the fields look as if they are farmed in the moonlight but as long as it increases production he is all for it.

While making the conservation survey, on his farm near Sanford Corners, Asher Thompson remarked, during one of the snow flurries that lasted nearly all day, "nice March weather we are having in April." It pretty well hit the nail on the head in regards to the weather. But aside with he weather.

When a farmer makes the conservation survey he makes a different type of acquaintance with his soil than the plowing type. He gets some of the "know-how" of his soil the same as he has mechanical "know-how" about his automotive equipment. If the ground was all level and well-drained there would be no problem and would compare to equipment that never caused trouble or just plain stopped operating, but who ever heard of anything like that?

The majority of soils in Warren County need some work to make them usable or more productive. These surveys acquaint the farmer with some of the basic reasons for their trouble and what can be done about it. The necessary remedy for their particular trouble can then be included in the conservation farm plan made by them with the help of the SCS technician. The survey helps the farmer with soil troubles just as a basic knowledge of engines help him with automotive troubles.

A. L. Brown, farmer and tax collector at Sanford Corners, completed his conservation survey in preparation for making his farm plan at a later date.

Art Garber, Grand Valley farmer and Lime dealer, made the conservation survey of his second farm. He has already decided to include 2 diversions in the farm plan he prepares later on this spring.

Practically all of the 75,000 seedlings received last fall have now been picked up by farmers co-operating with the District. The trees and shrubs will be planted on steep and odd areas around the farm while the multiflora rose will add to the fast increasing living fences in Warren County.

See you all next week.

Then looking straight at the judge, he concluded:

The judge said he had no reason to believe that Collazo was not serious in what he said. But, he told him, he also thinks conditions in Puerto Rico "have nothing to do with the law or the morals in the case."

Furthermore, the judge said, he feels conditions in Puerto Rico are infinitely better than they were under Spanish rule.

The lives and loves of Rutledge, his wife, and Hatman were unfolded in a Cedar Rapids, Ia., courtroom in 1949.

There Sydney testified she was forced to submit to Hatman after a boat ride and drinking party in July, 1948.

The defense argued Rutledge was defending the sanctity of his home; the state that Rutledge lay in wait in a hotel room, knocked Hatman out with a blow on the head and stabbed him "with surgical precision and skill."

Jacksonville, Tex., April 6—(P)—The mother of Byron Hatman, stabbed to death by Dr. Robert Rutledge, Jr., commented last night after hearing Rutledge had killed himself:

"I've felt that all must answer to the Lord. It is His way of taking a hand. Surely vengeance is the Lord."

plans for the transfers.

The biggest single cut was in the budget of the civil defense administration. Mr. Truman asked $403,000,000 for this purpose and the committee recommended $186,750,000.

For operation of programs growing out of the 1950 defense production act, the committee recommended $38,000,000, a cut of $13,000,000.

In explanation of its larger reductions, the committee said it is time for the executive agencies to make sacrifices in the interest of strengthening the nation. All these agencies, it said, seem willing to assist in the defense effort "provided they get additional funds and staff therefore and provided they can continue to carry on their regular activities."

Instead of going "all out for a resumption of normal peacetime functions" in the last few years, the committee said, the executive agencies should have pointed their activities toward national defense.

told Newmaker and Johnson she had been driving for 20 years without an accident.

Among the cars previously followed by the Jaycee Safe Driving Committee members, the prize was lost because of failure to signal, sudden stopping or riding in the middle of the street instead of on the right side of the road. One man, about to win the prize, missed out when he drove his Dodge coupe through a caution light.

Funds for the prize money have been supplied by four Warren insurance dealers, Logan Bolon, Garison Insurance Agency, Floyd Conklin and Paul Yagge, with a fifth donation by the Warren County Motor Club.

The drive will be resumed Monday morning and afterwards the rest of the week.

A major factor in labor's boycott of the defense agencies was their contention that Defense Mobilizer Wilson, a former president of the General Electric Company, allowed "big business" to dominate the defense program.

All-state Scholastic Basketball Selections Announced by AP

Harrisburg, April 6—(AP)—Five sharpshooters, who together scored 3464 points this season, make up the 1951 all-Pennsylvania scholastic basketball team, released today by the Associated Press.

Two repeaters from last year's first team—Tom Gola of Philadelphia LaSalle High and Mike Deaul of Reading Central Catholic—are joined by three other schoolboy standouts making their first appearance on the honor quintet.

The newcomers are Ed Fleming, six-three senior from Pittsburgh Westinghouse Joe Holup, a six-five junior from Swoverville and Julie McCoy, Farrell's six-two Junior basketball star.

McCoy, who broke a WPAL scoring record with 477 points, was the leading vote-getter with 38 votes from sports editors and radio sportscasters from all over the state. More than 100 participated in the annual balloting to select the five best schoolboy cagers in the state.

The balloting was made on the basis of season performances and not playoff exploits.

Lady Golfers

Glenna Collett, who had recently lost her crown as American Woman's Golf Champion, fought gamely to the end in a match with the British Open Champion, Miss Joyce Wethered, at Troon, Scotland in May of 1925. It was the 3rd round of the contest and Miss Collett won the third and eighth holes with an exhibition of her usual superior playing, but due to unfortunate errors, lost the 5th, 6th, and 9th holes. The other four holes were halved.

The tally for the first nine was 38 for Miss Collett to 37 for Miss Wethered. Miss Collett had lost by one stroke! The hard luck continued on the return journey. Glenna landed in the bunkers on the 10th and 11th holes, had to take three putts on the 14th, and just barely managed to halve the 12th and 13th holes with a par 4. Miss Wethered won the 10th with a birdie 4 and the 11th with a birdie 3. The match ended on the 15th hole, when Miss Collett missed a putt, halving the hole and giving the match to Miss Wethered.

Field and Stream Club Lists Regulations for Chapman Dam

Considerable local interest has been expressed recently concerning the rules and regulations which will be in effect this summer at Chapman Dam near old Clarendon.

So that local sportsmen and picnickers can be guided accordingly, the Warren Field and Stream Club announced that the following regulations will be enforced:

1. No motor boats will be permitted. Manually operated boats will be permitted but they may not be left on the lake or in the park after dark.
2. No swimming will be permitted in Chapman Dam this year. Future plans for the Dam include a bathing area with complete facilities but until such area and facilities are a reality no bathing will be allowed.
3. An area will be set as a picnicking area with fireplaces and tables. Fires will not be permitted in any other part of the park.

Development of Chapman Park has barely begun. Though some regulations which will govern the use of the park will probably not be appreciated by everyone, it must be understood that these regulations serve to make the park useful for the greatest number of people and local cooperation will go a long way in making Chapman Park a real credit to Warren County.

TIME TRAP

By ROG PHILLIPS

Chapter 20
BACK in the hotel Ray found Joe and Val in the lobby dozing in two chairs by the windows. He woke them up and told them with an air of suppressed excitement that it had happened. Val came to his feet instantly.

"Good," he said. "Let's go up to your room where we can talk."

"Did you ask her if she has a girl friend for me?" Joe asked the moment they reached the room and the door was closed.

"I was too excited to think of it," Ray said.

"What did she say?" Val Nelson asked impatiently. "How is she? Are the Vargians treating her well?"

Ray looked at Val blankly. He had forgotten that Nelva, according to the story that had been chattered out to him, was supposed to be in the hands of the Vargians.

"She didn't say how she was or where she was," he said. "She just told me how we could get together."

"How?" Val asked eagerly.

"She said for me and Joe to get out someplace away from town and be sure that no one knew where we were and she would meet us," Ray said. "She stressed the 'no one,' too, as though she meant even you fellows." A malicious impulse possessed him. He added naively, "I wonder why?"

"I wonder too," Val Nelson said. "It makes me think—" He stopped abruptly.

"It makes you think what?" Ray asked innocently.

"Never mind," Val said. "Let's go over to headquarters so you can tell her father about it."

With that question Ray knew Val had talked with the Vargians and been told that they didn't get the slightest trace of a telepathic bearing, and that either there had been none or something new had been added to things.

"Of course I didn't imagine it!" he said indignantly. "What reason would I have for that?"

"That's it," Val said, addressing his remark more to his three fellow Custodians than to Ray. "You would have no reason to."

"Well," Neal Smith said, as though making a decision on a bad bargain. "It's about time for dinner. Suppose we eat, and then you two can go out and keep your rendezvous."

"The rest of you eat," Val spoke up hastily. "I'll go out and rent a car for them so it'll be all ready when they are."

briefly by telepathy while in one of the offices on his inspection tour and told him that he and Joe must take a jaunt out of town into the country alone. If anyone came along or knew where they were headed she wouldn't meet them.

Val listened impatiently until Ray had told it. He excused himself then with the promise he would be right back. While he was gone Arthur Granger went into an act on how glad he was that his daughter would soon be with him, and how he had looked forward to this day ever since he had been taken from him so long ago.

When Val returned Neal and Craig were with him. He looked distinctly puzzled.

"This is it," Ray thought grimly. "Either they take my story at face value or they know that I'm on to them and it's no use in their pretending any more."

He started to repeat his story to Neal and Craig.

"Val told us," Neal said almost curtly.

"When is this rendezvous?" Craig blurring asked.

"She didn't say," Ray answered. "I gathered that the sooner the better, however. Even right now."

He thought, "If Joe and I can only get away soon free from this crowd of liars we won't come back, whatever happens."

"Are you sure she contacted you and you didn't imagine it?" Val asked desperately.

Val had talked with the Vargians and been told that they didn't get the slightest trace of a telepathic bearing, and that either there had been none or something new had been added to things.

"Of course I didn't imagine it!" he said indignantly. "What reason would I have for that?"

"That's it," Val said, addressing his remark more to his three fellow Custodians than to Ray. "You would have no reason to."

"Well," Neal Smith said, as though making a decision on a bad bargain. "It's about time for dinner. Suppose we eat, and then you two can go out and keep your rendezvous."

"The rest of you eat," Val spoke up hastily. "I'll go out and rent a car for them so it'll be all ready when they are."

"A good idea," Ray said approvingly.

VAL caught a taxi which took him directly to the building where Ray had spent most of the day supposedly inspecting light fixtures. There was a preoccupied frown on his face as he entered the building and took the elevator to the tenth floor. He was obviously well known to the attendants in the building. He had told the truth when he had said no one was permitted in the areas occupied by the Vargians unless they had known business there.

He strode quickly down the hall on the tenth floor and opened a door without knocking. The room he entered was large, taking up the full length of the building. There were several dozen Vargians here, all busily watching banks of television screens that brought various scenes to view from all over the city.

He ignored these and walked through the long room to a door at the far end, in the same wall as that through which he had entered. This time he knocked. A voice was telling him to come in, as if he had knocked—but he was used to the Vargian ability to see a little way into the future. He opened the door and entered a room where half a dozen Vargians sat around a table in some sort of conference.

These were Vargians such as Ray and Joe hadn't seen. They were men, stooped, shouldered and with gray hair. Their skins were wrinkled. Their two eyes like normal people's were faded.

But in the forehead of each of them the third eye was startlingly different than in those Ray and Joe had seen. In each of them that third eye was brightly alive with strange forces that swirled and danced.

Val paused after he closed the door. He swallowed loudly several times. He always felt helpless and uncomfortable in the presence of these Vargians here, that sat quietly, day after day, and guided the destinies of both Vargians and men.

They looked at him, their faces expressionless. They were waiting for him to speak.

way leading into the parking lot of a rather large country cocktail bar and restaurant. He drove into a parking place. When they got out of the car Ray saw that Joe had taken the keys and dropped them into his suit coat pocket.

Another car had driven in just behind them. Three men and three girls were converging with them toward the ornate entrance to the place.

As they reached the doors Ray stumbled against Joe, picking the keys out of his pocket, jouncing Joe against one of the men. They were profuse apologies. Ray, slipping the keys in his pocket, accepted full blame for everything. One of the men insisted it was his fault, as he though he must have tripped Ray, since he was right behind him.

Inside Ray and Joe went to the bar. The three men and their girl friends took a table ten feet away. Ray waited until the bartender had brought their drinks.

"Be back in a minute, Joe," he said casually. "Keep my place for me."

Now if I can coax a girl away from that party we bumped into coming in," Joe said happily.

Ray laughed and sipped his drink before leaving. As he made his way toward the men's room one of the three men in the party detached himself and followed him. He fell into step beside Ray.

"Listen, Ray," he said softly. "Let's step outside a minute. I want to make a deal with you."

"What is it?" Ray asked in a voice that wouldn't carry. "Why not here? There's lots of noise." The stranger looked around warily.

"You're right," he mumbled. "Listen. How would you like to rent me your car for the rest of the night? I'll give you a hundred bucks, and have it back in town at any garage you say by nine o'clock tomorrow morning."

Ray concealed a look of exultation. He looked knowingly at the man.

"Too crowded with six of you, huh?" he grinned.

"Exactly," the man said. "Tell you what—I'll make it a hundred and fifty. Then if we scratch a fender it'll be taken care of ahead of time, and if we don't you're that much ahead."

"You're on," Ray agreed, reaching into his pocket, and getting the keys. "But there's one condition attached to it."

"Get your girl friend and scram with it right away," Ray said. "Fair enough," the man said, exchanging three fifty dollar bills for the keys.
